“ Prof. Armstrong was my teacher & mentor, and his smile then dissolved any knots a graduate student often had, and reminds me always to be kind and happy. I am sad. May I wish your journey be peaceful.

“ Dr. Armstrong was my graduate advisor for both my masters and PhD at Virginia Tech. But, more importantly, he became a tremendous friend and that was the greatest impact he had on me. I pray the Lord provides comfort during this time for the family and those who love him. He will be missed, but always loved!

“ I worked with Jim at Virginia Tech as a fellow computer engineering faculty member. Jim was an international expert in hardware description languages and was one of the driving forces in creating the computer engineering undergraduate and graduate degrees at Virginia Tech. More importantly, he was supportive of new faculty, like myself. He was always ready to help his colleagues and his students succeed. We have lost a good man. May Jim rest in peace.

“ We're saddened to learn our friend Jim has passed on 🙏. Jim and Marie were among the first to welcome Alice and I to Blacksburg. They made us feel so very welcomed and that remained. It was Jim and Marie who welcomed Alice into the choir at St. Mary's and to join the Blacksburg Master Choral. We've always cherished our memories with them. We send our blessing for Jim and to Marie and family. Hugs, Alice and Tom Payne 🙏

Jim and I were part of a group of faculty hired into the Electrical Engineering Department at Virginia Tech during the mid- to late 1970s in an expansion led by then Department Head, Bill Blackwell.

Although our specialties differed, Jim's friendly and welcoming personality made me feel at home despite having just left my native England. For example, even though we were both seeking tenure, we managed to find time to play golf together at the Blacksburg Municipal Course.

In later years, during my tenure as Head of EE, Jim was a tower of strength as we strove to achieve greater national prominence for the department. In particular, his leadership of the Computer Engineering faculty led them to significant successes in research, graduate student advising, and undergraduate instruction.

However, above all, Jim was a team player and talented leader who always displayed friendship, loyalty, and joy in the success of others. i will forever remember Jim and my sincere condolences go the Marie and other family members.
