years he conducted basic research on the anatomy and physiology of Lepidoptera and rose to the rank of professor. In 1988 he accepted the position of Associate Dean of the Virginia Tech Graduate School. Serving there he was part of a team which conceived of and led the implementation of the electronic dissertation project. John retired in 2002 as Professor of Entomology and Graduate Dean Emeritus. He then took on his most important role as Papa. A position that he excelled at for the rest of his life.

Do not stand at my grave and weep. I am not there, I do not sleep. I am a thousand winds that blow. I am the diamond glint on snow. I am the sunlight on ripened grain. I am the gentle autumn rain. When you wake in the morning hush, I am the swift, uplifting rush of quiet birds circling in flight. I am the soft star light at night. I live in the memory of all who knew and loved me. Only when they die will I too be gone.- Mary Frey, 1932, amended by John L. Eaton 2012

“ When I first met my cousin, John, I felt an instant family connection. He reminded me so much of my grandfather, Leroy Eaton, who I adored. Although we did not know each other until later in life, we were able to share memorable visits with both John and Peggy throughout our retirement years. John's warm and caring heart will live in my memories forever. I will miss him always. Jan Eaton Vance
