“ I always remember Wayne as a mountain of a man, pillar of strength and totally dedicated to his beautiful wife, Joyce, and adoring son, Anthony. I don't think I ever remember a time that he was not beaming with pride over his family, their accomplishments and his love for them. Anthony always made it known that he adored his parents and idolized his dad but I remember how Wayne looked at his wife and son, in sheer aww at this treasure that God had blessed him with. I can only imagine the love and pride he had for his new daughter and granddaughter and what a blessing they were to him. I'm sure that he is watching them all now with love and protection. Just as in life, he is again preparing a home for his loved ones. From above he continues to watch over them with protection, pride and love until they are all together again in their Eternal Home.

“Dad you were so much more than just Dad. You were my Hero and my Best Friend. I am proud to be called your son. You always put everyone’s needs before your own. You were the hardest working man I have ever met. Your honesty and integrity and love for Mom and family are just a few things that you taught me by your example. You had a servants heart always helping family, friends, and neighbors when they needed you the most. Dad 50 years with you was not enough but I was blessed God let me have you that long. You Truly were the Best and I Love You!
